

So very lonely, Aquileia.

*But one day,
by chance, she encountered a magician.*

He was unbound by Aquileia's winds.

Filled with joy, Aquileia gave a promise to the magician.

*That if he was to become her friend,
she would protect him forever.*

Aquileia, watching his happiness, what did she think?

Perhaps, she was happy and smiled dazzlingly like a flower.

The only thing that brought her sorrow was the magician's death.

"How could you, who killed Death itself,
die oh so soon?"

DO YOU MEAN
THE LYRICS OF THE SONGS AND LACORDANA SONGS ...

The beautiful and powerful fairy of ancient times, Apuleia.
The waves of her winds were so powerful that even fellow fairies were too weak to come near her. So very lonely Apuleia.
But one day, by chance, she encountered a magician. A peculiar magician with eyes of differing colors. He was entranced by Apuleia's winds.
Filled with joy, Apuleia gave a promise to the magician. That if he was to become her friend, she would protect him forever. With her protection, the magician became king, and had a beautiful queen. Apuleia, watching his happiness, what did she think? Perhaps, she was happy and smiled delicately like a flower. The only thing that brought her sorrow was the magician's death. "How could you, who killed Death itself, die at all now?"
40 letters not written a letter. "Crying a hundred days, crying a thousand days, she faded into no form. Apuleia. Even in death, she protects the magician's descendants. ah, faithful Apuleia. Ah, ah. Our beloved sister.
Only Mother Nature's not can grant you school. Many days from now we will meet there again. When that time comes,
we will be by your side.

THAT SHOULD BE IT.

DO YOU WANT ME TO WRITE
IT, SONNET?

UNCLE
AS EXPECTED OF YOU.

Yes!

(The Story of a Magician and a Princess)

Oath

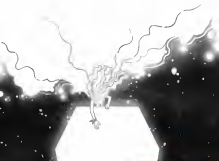

I UNDERSTAND NOW

THE INSCRIPTION ON THE THRONE IS RELATED TO THE DEATH OF THE FIRST KING.

But...

'How could you, who killed Death itself, die so soon'—
I can't figure out this line.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

What kind of person was the First King?

IN THE PRESENT,
NOTHING IS KNOWN ABOUT
THE FIRST KING

IS IT THE CASTLE LIBRARY, THE CENTRAL LIBRARY OR ANY OF THE OTHER DACHES...

THERE ARE NO RECORDS
ABOUT THE FIRST KING

PERHAPS, COULD YOU NOT TELL ME YOUR REASON FOR SEEKING INFORMATION ABOUT THE FIRST KING?
